

Kim and her family are originally from Iowa. Having made many trips to Colorado over the years, they decided to relocate here in 2018. Kim and her husband Ben Stone have teenagers at Lewis Palmer High School. Their daughter Libby (class of 2022) is on the Poms dance team and their son Callahan (class of 2024) runs cross country and track. As a family they enjoy skiing, hiking, biking, and all things outdoors. Kim and Ben enjoy live music, especially outdoor festivals.

Kim is a business and leadership coach and consultant, dedicated to supporting nonprofit organizations, small businesses, and leaders through her company Athena Coaching & Consulting. Kim has a passion for the nonprofit sector, having spent over 30-years as an organizational leader serving agencies of all sizes. In 2020, she decided to expand her reach and shift to supporting the nonprofit sector through consulting, coaching, and facilitation.

With a deep passion for serving the communities she lives in, Kim began looking for an organization to serve. The significant impact and wonderful reputation of TriLakes Cares attracted her to get involved with them. Kim is excited to see how her involvement can help strengthen our community.
